Thomson Reuters Goes Live with Delta Data Factory

First Derivatives (AIM: FDP.L, ESM:FDP.I), a leading provider of software and consulting services to the capital markets industry, is pleased to announce that, Thomson Reuters 'pricing and reference data group (P&RDG) have selected and fully implemented First Derivatives' Delta Data Factory (DDF) service. This announcement follows First Derivatives' recent launch of DDF, a hosted data factory service for reference data and also the formation of a dedicated data management division.

According to Tim Rice, MD of global content, "We selected First Derivatives' Delta Data Factory because of the flexibility and rapid implementation speed, powerful data transformation engine, data knowledgeable team, reliable hosted infrastructure and global support model. Within Thomson Reuters' data strategy, First Derivatives' independence as a strong 3rd party service provider supports and accelerates our plans allowing clients to leverage our data quickly".

Dale Richards, President of First Derivatives' US and global head of data management at First Derivatives commented "We are very pleased to have Thomson Reuters as a client of DDF. The service is a powerful new model for the data industry and Thomson Reuters implementing and going live is a terrific endorsement of the products capabilities".
